

CodeRed: Agent Sarah's Story – an episodic game by LivinThing studio

Meet FBI special agent Sarah Young and her story and save NYC from total annihilation

We are proud to present a detective and adventure game “CodeRed: Agent Sarah’s Story”. Playing as special agent Sarah Young we will be given the opportunity to carry out an investigation to capture an extremely dangerous terrorist.

Our product has been created based on point&click game play and is distinguished by extensive script, hand painted graphics, music composed specifically for the game, the need to make moral choices and achievement system. What also is worth mentioning is the fact our game introduces some social elements that will enable its players to meet their friends playing other characters of the game such as informers, suspects or snitches.

We decided to split the game into three episodes which correspond to the three days of the investigation. Currently, we are pleased to present the first of the episodes. After completing this one, players will be able to compare their achievements and re-start the investigation. It means you can make different decisions and carry out the investigation in another way of your choice. CodeRed offers free access to the game and micropayments. Players can also get a VIP card with a single purchase. Our production is going to be available on Facebook.

The agent’s comment

„I only have three days to save New York from annihilation. Should you decide to help me, I will require full cooperation from you. Together we will make tough decisions, not only work related ones. The situation is serious so you’ll have to keep a cool head. Code Red has been announced by the President; we are all in danger. Remember that each of your decisions is going to have some irreversible consequences. So, are you going to take up the challenge and join my investigation? It can be the adventure of your lifetime”
